WE'D RIDE: A trolley connecting Brickell and downtown would get 80% of downtowners to ride, a survey of 600 of them says. Further, a third of those who took the 10-question survey to help set a route said they'd pay a small fare, said Javier Betancourt, Downtown Development Authority transportation and urban planning manager. The Miami City Commission today (5/28) is to vote on an agreement with Miami-Dade Transit to ensure a $4.08 million transit grant to buy the rubber-tire trolley buses and signage, bus benches and shelters planned for Downtown, Brickell, the Health District, Allapattah, Overtown and Coral Way.
